Jobs, school woes stare Nutter in face

Voters, analysts say he must take lead on turning around city schools, sluggish economy • Nutter excited by fresh new Council to work with

In a race that featured little suspense, Mayor Michael Nutter cruised to re-election last night by defeating Republican challenger Karen Brown and independent hopeful Wali "Diop" Rahman.

Nutter's victory either signaled his ability to convince voters that the steps taken in his first four years were significant enough or the lack of faith in two candidates largely unknown to most voters. He must now help turn around a 10.9 percent jobless rate and a Philadelphia School District plagued by budget woes and leadership turnover.

The school district has experienced eight straight years of improved test scores, but been plagued by controversies regarding the superintendent, School Reform Commission and budget woes. State lawmakers are also pushing for vouchers, which could further hamstring the district.

"If education is the long-term issue, then jobs are the relatively short-term issue," said Zack Stalberg, executive director of the Committee of Seventy, a political watchdog group.

Nutter recently appointed two new members to the five-member SRC and has shown more involvement since the spring.

Nutter, in his victory speech last night, said his administration has put some of the city's problems "on the ropes, but we have not delivered the knockout punch needed to move this city forward."

He went on to urge the city's grownups to behave like adults to improve education and lower violence.

"We must redouble our efforts to continue to attract businesses and jobs to Philadelphia," he added.

New Jersey residents approved a controversial ballot question that would expand gambling at Atlantic City casinos to include sports betting. Early returns found that by a 2 to 1 margin, voters cast ballots in favor of making Atlantic City more like Las Vegas in its betting options. METRO

Major overhaul in City Council

Six of the 17 lawmakers who make up the city's governing body elected last night will be newcomers in January, which could mean an opportunity for Nutter to do a better job of building relationships.

"He has not had a great working relationship with City Council and this gives him an unprecedented opportunity to try to restart that relationship, one in which he has nine votes on issues he cares about," Stalberg said. METRO

Council at large

Five incumbent at large Council Democrats easily won re-election, but the fight for two Republican seats was much closer. Former state lawmaker Dennis O'Brien took one seat while the other was too close to call.

Looking back at Nutter's first four

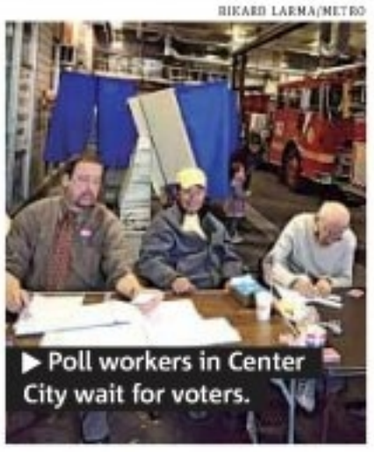
- Voters disagree on mayor's achievements in first term
- N. Philly down on Nutter, Center City seems content

RICARD LARMA/METRO



▶ Poll workers in Center City wait for voters.

Opinions about Mayor Michael Nutter's past term and political future varied greatly between polling places in Center City and North Philadelphia, almost uniformly for and against the incumbent respectively.

"All he does is post his picture and say, 'Vote for me,'" said Stephanie Hamilton as she sat outside the 12th and Cambria Recreation Center, where voters from both the 9th and the 10th divisions in the 37th ward cast their ballots. "He needs to do more stuff for the community. He'd rather build casinos and parking lots and show up for everything to get publicity."

In exit polling of a few voters at the Eighth Ward's 15th division in Center City just south of Market Street, three people who cast a ballot for Nutter all found his first term satisfactory.

"I'm looking for more of the same. Maybe a more active partner within the school system," one voter said. Another woman in North Philadelphia criticized Nutter for a lack of community engagement.

"What happened to working with kids and investing in education? Nothing has changed since he has been in office. Nothing," Carol Short said.

Still, one North Philadelphian was sympathetic.

"I think some things could improve, but I like him," said Norman Sabu. "He did what he had to do in order to keep the city afloat given the economic crisis."

BLURRING CITY LINE FOR BUSINESS

City Avenue, commonly referred to as City Line Avenue or U.S. Route 1, is known throughout the region as the dividing line between the city of Philadelphia and the Montgomery County suburbs of Lower Merion. City Avenue is a hub of business activity, shopping and dining. It is home to two universities and boasts the second-densest office population in the region.

The border between the two counties is often used figuratively and literally to illustrate the differences between doing business in Philadelphia and doing business in the 'burbs. Sadly, Bala Cynwyd is often seen as the place just over the border to escape city taxes and regulations.

Each year, countless individuals open up businesses just outside Philadelphia due to the city's Business Privilege Tax and other onerous fees and taxes. Its unusually high tax rates make it difficult for the city to compete with other jurisdictions in attracting and retaining businesses and residents.

Unfortunately, the numbers confirm what we suspect. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the city continues to lose jobs. In 2010, Philadelphia had an average of 657,000 jobs. By August of this year, the number had declined to 647,000.

In an effort to turn the tide, Philadelphia City Council passed legislation last week to begin to reduce the financial burden on businesses trying to grow or start up. For years, the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce has worked hard to push for these much needed changes.

One bill, introduced by Councilwoman Maria Quinones Sanchez and Councilman Bill Green, is a BPT reform bill designed to provide significant tax relief for Philadelphia businesses — including start-up firms, which are an engine of job growth.

Another bill, introduced by Councilman Jim Kenney, seeks to eliminate, waive or reduce certain fees and permit charges on new businesses.

The bill, known as "Jumpstart Philly Legislation," is designed to entice businesses to locate here and to create new jobs for local residents. Specifically, the measure provides all new businesses with a two-year BPT exemption and a waiver on all business-related license fees for the first two years. It also eliminates the Business Privilege License Fee for all businesses beginning Jan. 1, 2014.

Together, these measures represent a significant step towards reducing the tax burden on existing and new businesses to promote growth and job development in Philadelphia.

With unemployment in Philadelphia hovering around 12 percent, the business community applauds the sponsors of these bills and Mayor Michael Nutter for recognizing that reducing taxes on new and small businesses will spur the economy and grow jobs.

New Cain motto: Nein, nein, nein!

Herman Cain defiantly denied sexual harassment allegations against him yesterday and vowed they would not force him to withdraw from the race for the 2012 Republican presidential nomination.

"Ain't going to happen," Cain said, referring to the chances of giving up his presidential bid. "We will get through this."

Cain spoke at a news conference to respond to Sharon Bialek, a Chicago woman who went public on Monday with allegations that Cain made a crude sexual advance against her in 1997 when he was head of the National Restaurant Association. She is the fourth woman to accuse him of sexual harassment.

Cain denied ever having seen Bialek until she appeared on television with her lawyer Gloria Allred to lay out allegations that he insisted "simply did not happen." REUTERS

Sarkozy mic gaffe: Calls fellow leader 'a liar'

PARIS. French President Nicolas Sarkozy branded Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu "a liar" in a private conversation with U.S. President Barack Obama that was accidentally broadcast to journalists during last week's G20 summit in Cannes.

"I cannot bear Netanyahu, he's a liar," Sarkozy told Obama, unaware that the microphones in the room had been switched on.

"You're fed up with him, but I have to deal with him even more often than you," Obama replied, according to the French interpreter.

The technical gaffe is likely to cause embarrassment to all three leaders as they look to work together to intensify international pressure on Iran. REUTERS

First fur ban in W. Hollywood

Putting animal rights over fashion imperatives and its own vibrant shopping scene, West Hollywood's leaders have given final approval to a first-in-the-nation ban on the sale of fur clothing within city limits. # Religion important to voters, poll finds

- Beliefs can be different than their own, but must exist
- 67% would be uncomfortable with atheist as president

Two-thirds of Americans believe it is important for a presidential candidate to have strong religious beliefs, even if those beliefs are different than their own, a survey released yesterday found.

The survey of Americans' attitudes by the nonpartisan Public Religion Research Institute found only one in five Americans would object to a candidate whose beliefs were different to their own.

When asked about specific religious faiths and the presidency, 29 percent of Americans would be uncomfortable with an evangelical Christian in the job, 53 percent would be uncomfortable with a Mormon, 64 percent with a Muslim and 67 percent would be uncomfortable with an atheist as president.

Former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney and former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman are Mormons running for president. The remaining Republican candidates are Christian, with some espousing strong beliefs.

Romney and businessman Herman Cain, a baptist, lead the pack in national polls.

Eight in 10 Americans believe creating jobs is the nation's most important priority, the survey found, while six in 10 said reducing the government budget deficit is critical. REUTERS

On Obama

President Barack Obama was seen by 44 percent of those polled as having good ideas about how to create jobs, compared to 35 percent backing the approach of Republican leaders in Congress.

Opinions of Obama showed 28 percent pronounced themselves "satisfied" and 5 percent "excited" about his presidency, while 26 percent felt "worried" and 10 percent felt "angry." Nearly one in three felt "disappointed" in his presidency.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Melissa McCarthy: Don't fear the jumpsuit

After she took the stage to launch Ivory Soap's new "Soap Dish" Facebook community for moms in New York City on Tuesday night — and was presented with a giant bar of Ivory carved in her likeness — Melissa McCarthy took a few moments to chat with Metro about the possibility of a sequel to "Bridesmaids," the summer blockbuster that made her a household name.

"[It's a] yes for me, [but I] don't know that it's happening," she told us. "I'll basically show up anywhere with those women — even if it's, like, a long bus trip, I'll go with them — but no talk of it yet. I think everyone's so busy. But I wouldn't mind it down the road just because I love that group."

McCarthy is indeed keeping very busy. Not only did she win an Emmy this year for her sitcom "Mike and Molly," but she's also developing her own clothing line for plus-sized women. "It's so preliminary right now. I know I want a jumpsuit in it. I'm not afraid of it. I love a jumpsuit."

McCarthy attended Tuesday night's "Soap Dish" event in New York City.

And when we asked if she's creating the line to be a role model for girls who aren't a size zero, the awesome actress just laughs. "No, I think I'm just selfishly making it for myself!" She elaborates: "I want separates, for the love of God, because everything's like a bad prom dress. You can find a million bad sleeveless dresses in satin. I'm like, 'Where's a good blouse and great trouser?'"

▶ Is there a direct correlation between high gas prices and the Duggars breeding?

Like the Brady Bunch ... but on steroids

Someone please stop Michelle and Jim Bob Duggar. The reality TV couple and human rabbits announced yesterday on "Today" they are expecting their 20th child this spring — this after their 19th baby, Josie, was born at only 25 weeks and survived a host of expensive and life-threatening medical problems. Michelle also suffered preeclampsia and gallbladder problems through that pregnancy.

"We are so excited," said Michelle, 45, who is three and a half months into her new pregnancy.

Jim Bob, 46, echoed his wife's sentiments, saying, "Michelle and I both feel like some of the most blessed parents in the world."

"We didn't want to stop on an odd number," he added.

Whew. Here I thought they wouldn't have a good, medical reason for putting Michelle's life at risk and adding to an already crowded world. Being particular about an odd versus even number is totally logical.

Talking points

Hugh likes Lohan

Hugh Hefner is excited about Lindsay Lohan's upcoming appearance in Playboy, saying the actress' all-revealing photo spread is "classy, very classy," he tells "The Insider." "It's a classic tribute inspired by the original Tom Kelly nude pictorial of Marilyn Monroe, a portion of which was the original playmate in the very first issue of Playboy." And apparently readers will be treated to Lohan's words as well. "The pictorial is absolutely fantastic and very tasteful," Lohan's rep says, "and will be accompanied by an interview that will let readers see another side of Lindsay."

Chastain lands another role

Jessica Chastain has been cast as Princess Diana in "Caught in Flight," a film about her alleged affair with heart surgeon Dr. Hasnat Khan, IndieWire reports. According to a press release, the film is "a love story between a princess locked in a tower and an ordinary man," and is set to begin filming in Pakistan, Angola and France in March 2012. Diana is said to have had a two-year affair with Khan leading up to her death in 1997.

Adele should be singing in no time

Adele has undergone surgery to repair her damaged vocal chords and is said to be recovering nicely, according to Rolling Stone. Her doctor "expects Adele to make a full recovery from her laser microsurgery," according to a statement from Massachusetts General Hospital's Voice Center. The singer was forced to cancel the remainder of her concerts and appearances due to a hemorrhaged vocal chord.

National Diabetes Month is a great time to take control.

If you have TYPE 2 DIABETES, take steps to help control your blood sugar.
Pay as little as $5*
For up to 12 prescriptions. Eligibility restrictions and terms apply.

Talk to your doctor about lowering blood sugar levels. Talk to your doctor about JANUVIA.

- JANUVIA is a once-daily prescription pill that helps your body increase the insulin made in your pancreas and decrease the sugar made in your liver.
- Along with diet and exercise, JANUVIA helps lower blood sugar levels in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not likely to cause weight gain or low blood sugar (hypoglycemia).

JANUVIA (jah-NEW-vee-ah) should not be used in patients with type 1 diabetes or with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in the blood or urine). If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas), it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting it while taking JANUVIA.

Selected Risk Information About JANUVIA: Serious side effects can happen in people who take JANUVIA, including pancreatitis, which may be severe and lead to death. Before you start taking JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you've ever had pancreatitis. Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

Do not take JANUVIA if you are allergic to any of its ingredients, including sitagliptin. Symptoms of serious allergic reactions to JANUVIA, including rash, hives, and swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty breathing or swallowing, can occur. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away.

Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis, have been reported.

If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include headache, drowsiness, weakness, dizziness, confusion, irritability, hunger, fast heart beat, sweating, and feeling jittery.

Your doctor may do blood tests before and during treatment with JANUVIA to see how well your kidneys are working. Based on these results, your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA. The most common side effects of JANUVIA are upper respiratory tract infection, stuffy or runny nose and sore throat, and headache.

Call 1-888-JANUVIA or visit Januvia.com.

Now you can get JANUVIA for as little as $5 per prescription.*

Eligible patients may pay as little as $5 out of pocket on each of up to 12 qualifying prescriptions. Maximum savings is $100 per prescription.

What we're into

Now: Yelping with Cormac

As is the case with most of our favorite Tumblr blogs, the concept here is so blissfully simple, so obviously a great idea, that it's a little annoying: What if Cormac McCarthy took a break from writing game-changing novels to review businesses on Yelp? From Jamba Juice to Forever 21, most establishments get a stoic three stars along with a fatalistic, vaguely violent short story that requires a dictionary and healthy sense of self and purpose to successfully emerge from. While obviously a spoof, the dead-on tone and punctuation is enough to make you think, if only for a second, that Cormac might be chasing Yelp Elite status. www.yelpingwithcormac.tumblr.com

Tomorrow: The First Person Festival

Now in its 10th year, The First Person Festival kicks off tomorrow with 11 days of documentary and memoir arts. Workshops and performances take place in venues across Old City — including upstairs at the Khyber, where there will be daily happy hour specials and storytelling performances.
Runs through Nov. 20, www.firstpersonarts.org

SAMANTHA MARBLE

This weekend: Supper's bagels

Supper didn't really need to add any all-star carbs to their brunch menu — the South Street sweet spot does, after all, serve up cornbread hush puppies and gingerbread pancakes every Saturday and Sunday. That said, we're glad those cider doughnuts were willing to share the spotlight with housemade bagels. Dense with just a little chew and topped with pastrami salmon, these babies might finally silence your NYC in-laws.

▶ The world needs saving from the comfort of your couch again in the new first-person shooter video game "Call of Duty: Modern Warfare 3."

5 Things to know about 'Call of Duty: Modern Warfare 3'

The year's most anticipated video game hit shelves yesterday For those who haven't been playing nonstop since then, here's why it's such a big deal

When we say it's the biggest game of the year, we mean it

In fact, this could be the best-selling game of all time, beating the previous record-holder, last year's "Call of Duty: Black Ops," which racked up more than $1.5 billion in sales. That's more than the worldwide gross of any film ever, save for "Titanic" and "Avatar."

So what's the game about? World War III, basically

Like any good blockbuster, New York, Paris and London are among the cities terrorized, turning into virtual battlegrounds — and Russia is an antagonist. In single-player mode, it's up to you to stop the threats. In multiplayer mode, you can team up to help or just shoot the hell out of someone else.

Celebrities are involved!

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Fichtner

"Grey's Anatomy" star Kevin McKidd voices a Task Force Captain, and character actor William Fichtner ("Armageddon") and Corey Stoll (Hemingway in "Midnight in Paris") play Delta Force ops.

The Activision title goes beyond the box

The service "Call of Duty: Elite" logs your stats and allows for social networking; a premium version leads to actual real-life prizes and more.

Don't confuse this with 'Battlefield 3'

The other recently released big combat game, from EA games, also involves nuclear terrorism, multiplayer battle and scenes in Iran, Paris and New York. Both titles have rabid fan bases. But an analyst told Forbes he expects "Battlefield 3" to sell 8 million copies. "Modern Warfare 3"? Sixteen million. METRO

Shakespeare was a fraud?

Roland Emmerich — the self-proclaimed Master of Disaster behind 'Independence Day' and '2012' — takes on the literary establishment in his latest, 'Anonymous'

COLUMBIA

▶ Rhys Ifans is the Earl of Oxford, purportedly the true author of the Shakespeare's plays, in "Anonymous."

While he was busy making millions with disaster films like "Independence Day," "The Day After Tomorrow" and "2012," German director Roland Emmerich secretly had a completely different kind of film in mind — one about the true authorship of Shakespeare's plays. And while he does manage to sneak an explosion or two into Elizabethan London, "Anonymous" is indeed a completely different film than what he's made before. And he always knew bringing it to the world would be "an uphill battle."

Do you have your own opinion about the identity of Shakespeare?

I side with the artists and writers. I side with Mark Ryland, Derek Jacobi, Walt Whitman, Henry James, Sigmund Freud, Charlie Chaplin, Orson Welles — all these people believed that the man from Stratford didn't write it. The problem with this whole thing, anyway, is there's the literary establishment — the educators, the professors, the school teachers and all these people who write books about the man from Stratford. They've devoted their whole lives, and now the Master of Disaster comes along and makes this movie — maybe I'm the antichrist, we don't know yet. They're thinking I am. But whatever it is, they have to bedevil me, they have to kind of think this is all nonsense, but it isn't. And it's an uphill battle, I knew that going in.

The last time we spoke, you were casting this film. How is it to show the finished product to the world?

It's a little nerve-wracking, but it's always nerve-wracking whenever you make a movie. You have to show it, you know? I actually do movies mainly because I want to see them, but films are so expensive, you have to show them to people. Lots of people! And that's always nerve-wracking for me, because I'm just afraid that they'll throw tomatoes at me or something.

NED EHRBAR
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Q&A

What made you want to take on this subject?

The orthodox scholars have a huge problem with the work of Shakespeare. How can a commoner write only about the point of view of an aristocrat? Why is there so much poetry? It's very hard to believe that it was written by a guy who was a younger man who was just coming to London as a commoner. The whole thing just doesn't make sense. We wanted to just show another version of it.

A Fling to remember

▶ The Fling play music that sounds way happier than this — cleaner, too!

The tight harmonies on "What I've Seen," the brand new EP from The Fling, may be the result of two of the singers being brothers — or it could be that they grew up on Lennon and McCartney.

"My dad is in a Beatles cover band," reveals singer and bassist Graham Lovelis, who formed the band with his older brother, singer and guitarist Dustin, in Long Beach, Calif.

But Lovelis indicates that there might be another reason for the perfect blending of voices in their psychedelic sound. The band recently went from a situation where the Lovelis brothers wrote all of the songs to one where everyone works on the composition process together.

"I will say that it seems like a fluke that we have four people who sing in the perfect range and don't really have to try," he says. "It seems like everyone kind of fell into place."

‘Raising Hope’ springs eternal

How a Fox comedy gets away with such bold backstory choices so late in the game Creator talks big decisions

ISABELLA VOSMIKOVA/FOX

The writers of “Raising Hope” come up with such reckless backstories (mild-mannered main character Jimmy Chance’s angry goth phase, his father’s decision to fake a kidnapping to go live in a Winnebago with a stranger, etc.) it almost seems as though they’re constantly thinking the show is about to be canceled. But creator and executive producer Greg Garcia says the moment that they found out they were renewed for a second season was actually when they started taking these wild liberties.

“If anything,” says Garcia, “it was more like, ‘Hey, we’re green lit for a second season. Let’s do something and get crazy with this!’”

It’s not like the show began with the most regular premise — Jimmy, a 23-year-old grocery store employee has a one-night stand with a serial killer, gets her pregnant, and has to raise their daughter after she is executed. Meanwhile, Jimmy still lives at home, with his senile great grandmother and his parents, who are only about 15 years older than he is. But Garcia and company took it a few steps further.

“I think just toward the end of the season, we — the writers and I — sat down and thought about what would be a good season ender,” he says, “then we came up with all those people’s backstory. ... It was just fun and we knew what we had done during the year, so we knew what we kind of had to stick true to.”

This season has seen similar bold back story choices. In the premiere, Jimmy learns from an old home video that he was a musical prodigy. As he tries to reclaim his talent, he can’t match the younger version of himself, played hilariously by young YouTube sensation Greyson Chance, who not only has the same last name as the characters, but looks a lot like Lucas Neff, who plays Jimmy.

“His YouTube videos blew my mind along with all of the other teen girls out there,” says Neff.

Looking like ‘Six Million’ bucks

Next week’s episode follows the show’s newfound tradition of unexpected guest stars adding to the backstory as the Chance family gets a last-minute visit from Jimmy’s wealthy paternal grandparents — played by none other than “The Six Million Dollar Man” and Mrs. Partridge (aka Lee Majors and Shirley Jones, respectively).

Banderas: 'Back to my family'

Antonio Banderas and Pedro Almodovar reunite for the horror film 'The Skin I Live In' 'Pedro is a genre in himself,' the star says of his director

▶ Elena Anaya and Antonio Banderas star in "The Skin I Live In," in theaters now.

"The Skin I Live In" reunites Antonio Banderas with the director who kick-started his career. "With Pedro Almodovar, there is a very close relationship since the beginning of the '80s," says Banderas, who starred in five films for Almodovar between 1982 and 1990. "This is almost 30 years, and for me this movie was going back to my family."

It's not that Banderas didn't want to return to his family all these years. It's just that something always got in the way: "We've had the opportunity to work together a couple of times, but I was attached to other movies so legally I couldn't get out of those projects in order to go and make his," the actor explains.

Quoted

"Pedro has been breaking the rules of the movies since he started working, and the reaction is always very radical. People love the movie and they want to put us on an altar — or they crucify us."

BANDERAS ON WORKING WITH DIRECTOR PEDRO ALMODOVAR

Since 1990's "Tie Me Up! Tie Me Down!", Banderas has become an international star, of course, finding success in Hollywood — though that's not necessarily the path Almodovar would've chosen. "He would've loved for me to stay in Spain and play only in his movies," Banderas says with a laugh. "But he had to understand, at the same time, because he's my friend and I have to do different things. He's really happy that ... I made a career that was different to the one that I had there."

Reteaming with his old friend meant the actor had to do some unlearning — as Almodovar typically insists his actors do. It's a sacrifice worth making, Banderas says.

"Pedro is a genre in himself," he says, a hushed reverence creeping into his voice. "Pedro has been breaking the rules of the movies since he started working, and the reaction is always very radical," he adds. "People love the movie and they want to put us on an altar, or they crucify us."

The reason for that, he suggests, is that Almodovar makes films that need time to reach full resonance, something he's seen with "The Skin I Live In," which has been playing in European theaters for nearly two months now. "You need time to digest and to put together what he's thrown at you," Banderas says. "It stays there. It makes you reflect. That doesn't happen with mainstream movies."

Smoke 'em if you got 'em

- Artist Daniel Clowes on his latest graphic novel
- Meet Andy, his cigarette-wielding teenage superhero

Even if you're not a graphic novel aficionado, you probably know the work of Daniel Clowes. A frequent contributor to The New Yorker and The New York Times Magazine, Clowes has written two movies based on his comic works, "Ghost World" and "Art School Confidential." In his latest book — the bold, zesty "The Death-Ray" — Clowes follows a 1970s teenager named Andy, who, with a puff of a cigarette, discovers his special powers. And once Andy gets his hands on a special ray-gun, Clowes turns the traditional superhero story on its masked head.

▶ Clowes' self-portrait

A kid who smokes a cigarette to discover his secret powers is subversive — and brilliant.
It seemed like, in a way, the most taboo thing that could ever happen in a work of art. If you had a movie where a kid smokes a cigarette, it is less likely it would be made than if he injects serum into his arm with a needle or takes blotter acid to attain super powers.

Are you a smoker?
No. And I can't stand to be around people who smoke. My dad even died of lung cancer. But you can't say there isn't a certain adolescent appeal to smoking. And he needed a way to discover his powers. So …

What is it about the secret super hero story that's so attractive to artists?
I read superhero comics as a kid and was really attracted to the way they looked; the early Marvel comics especially seemed so charged with electricity. I read them until I was 12 or 13 or so and then I lost interest. They suggest this rich world of imagination, but they never quite live up to that as you're reading them. I just wanted to create a story that seems to have some depth and resonance but also uses the iconography of the old super hero comics. And, sure, I do feel some primal attraction to that costume-wearing kid in a dark urban environment.

Why is Tom's Wife Smiling?

And the simple trick he used to help him perform like a 20 year old! Without drugs, pumps, or embarrassing doctor visits.

By, Stefan Rothler; Freelance Health Writer;

If you're like Tom, you know how frustrating it is when you can't "Stand Up" for yourself. Especially in the bedroom! And even though your wife tells you "its okay"— she secretly wishes you weren't such "a softy". For your sake and hers.

Tom's Story:

Tom M. had a big problem. His love-life was "coming up short". And like a lot of men his age, he had a tough time "performing" in the bedroom.

But Tom's wife was kind. She reassured him with words like "it's no big deal"--- but it really was. So she urged him to get some help. He took her advice…

Tom searched the web for answers, and came up with nothing but scams. Everything he tried failed. He thought about asking his doctor about that well-known "little blue pill". But it was way too expensive (as much as $30.00 per tablet). Plus, it doesn't work for 32% of all men who try it. And according to its warning labels you could wind up deaf, blind, or even dead! It's just not worth the risk.

The Secret of the Adult Film Industry

And by age 60, you're left with a fraction of the HGH you used to have. The signs of aging become impossible to ignore... narrower shoulders and more weight around the middle... thinner skin that loses elasticity... creases and wrinkles... aching joints and brittle bones... all signs that your body is gradually breaking down.

Add to that, decreased desire and ability and a loss of muscle tone that leads to a dangerous loss of agility and balance. But none of this has to happen...

Secret of The Rich and Famous

As Tom continued his research, he came across something unusual. He read that male actors in the adult film industry use something called "Herbal Virility". Before filming, the actors would pop one of these tiny pills in their mouth--- so when the director yells "action"- there's always plenty of it!

It's been the secret of adult film producers for years! That's because instead of taking a full-hour for it to work, Herbal Virility starts giving you "solid, long-lasting results" almost immediately after you take it --- no waiting!

Tom was excited to try it. After all, Herbal Virility helped thousands of men get back their confidence in the bedroom. And since its all-natural Herbal Virility is a lot safer than drugs. There are no pumps to hassle with, no embarrassing doctor visits needed and it's surprisingly affordable. Plus, it's based on Nobel prize-winning research...

Here's How It Works:

In 1998, three scientists shared a Nobel Prize for discovering that the chemical compound nitric oxide (or NO) plays a vital role in widening your blood vessels so blood flows more freely... especially in the "intimate areas" of your body.

When you're young, nitric oxide flows abundantly through your body. Unfortunately, as you grow older, your NO production starts to diminish. As a result, so does your love life. That's why Herbal Virility is so important.

Just pop a Herbal Virility into your mouth. Its proprietary formulation has no bitter taste and dissolves quickly into your bloodstream.

Herbal Virility contains all 25 of the most potent natural male enhancement boosters on earth. It helps kick-start your body's natural ability to produce nitric oxide on its own. So you're ready for action when you want it --- and as often as you want it. You'll get a "big boost" of confidence in the bedroom. And your wife will be so excited she may wake up the neighbors!

Rave Reviews Coming in Everyday

Most men, who experience Herbal Virility's firm results, can't get enough of it. Here's what people are saying...

W. Pritchett II of Newport News, VA, tells us; "After I turned 52, I couldn't get it to work. I thought my fun was over. But now, thanks to Herbal Virility I can heat things up in the bedroom anytime I want to." Please send me another 6 month supply!"

Melissa M. of Key Largo, FL reports; "Herbal Virility saved our marriage! What a difference it made in my husband. He's like a new man! All I can say is WOW!".

Not Available in Stores

The demand for Herbal Virility has been overwhelming. And until now, there just wasn't enough of it to go around. That's why the makers of Herbal Virility are limiting its supply to newspaper and magazine readers only.

Herbal Virility is amazing. Men who try it can't seem to get enough. But to really understand why, you have to try it for yourself. That's why the makers of Herbal Virility asked us to "spread the word" by offering our readers a full-month supply, at a super-discounted, "readers only" price.

Try Herbal Virility Risk-Free...
Plus a 1 Year, Money-Back Guarantee

See for yourself. You have a whole year to decide. Here's our guarantee; "If Herbal Virility doesn't give you back your desire, your stamina --- and get you "interested" whenever you need it --- you won't have to pay a dime. You have a full year to make up your mind. Either you're absolutely thrilled with Herbal Virility… or you get back every red cent!

Not your mother's Slim-Fast

We have a confession to make. The new flavors in the iconic weight-loss shake company's repertoire taste, well, really good. Like, milkshake good. The new drinks are part of Slim-Fast's 3-2-1 Plan — which calls for three snacks, two shakes or meal replacements bars and one 500-calorie meal — and come in five flavors like creamy milk chocolate and cappuccino delight. Each boasts 10 grams of protein and 5 grams of fiber, and even the container is new: Slim-Fast has traded those old-school cans for sleek new bottles.

What's the story behind all of those mustaches?

November is here, and so is Movember Guys, your facial hair can make a difference 'It started as a social experiment,' says founder

Prostate cancer hits one in every six men. Adam Garone, the founder of Movember, is trying to do something about that.

You might be noticing a larger-than-usual number of men growing mustaches this month. Welcome to Movember, the annual campaign for raising awareness and funds for prostate and other male cancers. Now in its fifth year in the U.S., Movember started as a joke in Australia in 2003, when Adam Garone — Movember's CEO and co-founder — along with his brother and a friend were lamenting the death of the '70s mustache. The trio dared each other to grow a mustache and keep it for an entire month. And what's in a name? Mo is Aussie slang for mustache.

"It started as a social experiment, and then we legitimized it by adding a cause," says Garone, who now lives in Santa Monica, CA. "We were inspired with what women were doing to raise awareness about breast cancer. Prostate cancer is the male equivalent of [female] breast cancer in mortality rate."

In 2010, nearly 65,000 participants started November clean-shaven and grew a mustache for 30 days, raising $7.5 million for the Prostate Cancer Foundation and LiveStrong, the Lance Armstrong Foundation, which are Movember's U.S. men's health partners.

"A mustache starts a conversation," Garone says. "There's a reticence in many countries to acknowledge prostate cancer. The mustache adds this fun, rebellious aspect to it. We want men to talk about prostate cancer. Men at my age, 40, need to start getting tested."

The go-to guide

Dr. Aaron Katz's new book, "The Definitive Guide to Prostate Cancer," looks at diet and treatment options — both traditional and holistic.

"I spend every day, every week with prostate cancer," says Katz, the founder and director of the Center for Holistic Urology at Columbia University. "Thirty-five thousand men die annually from prostate cancer. Men need to stop being afraid of getting tested or getting treated."

MJ: The cult of irresponsibility

RE: "MJ DOCTOR GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER": Despite pleas of "more milk [propofal]" by Michael Jackson (apparently devoid of personal responsibility), Dr. Conrad Murray was found guilty of involuntary homicide because he was supposed to act as the ultimate stop gap for the harmful behaviors of his patients. Meanwhile, in our recent economic upheaval created by a burst mortgage and real estate bubble, while many wannabe home owners thirsted for homes they couldn't afford, mortgage bankers were supposed to be the ones to say no. Wall Street traders were supposed to say there was no market for subpar mortgages and ratings agencies were supposed to condemn toxic products. They did the opposite. So why aren't they sent to jail for involuntary fiscal malfeasance?

New Cain on the block

RE: "CAIN ACCUSED OF GROPING": Even if the allegations by that chick who looks like Christie Brinkley's evil twin are true, then Herman Cain is in good company. His alleged penchant for the ladies pales in comparison to lotharios such as Bill Clinton and Martin Luther King Jr. MICHAEL CHIMENTI, VIA E-MAIL

I don't know if Herman Cain is my top choice for president; I need to know more about his character. What I know for sure is that if it came to deciding between Cain and Obama, the issue is clear — I'd vote for anyone over a man who has done everything in his power to diminish our economy and national security.
JOSEPH DUPONT, VIA E-MAIL

It's a sad comment on the reality show mentality of this country that Herman Cain's clumsy sexual advances have caused his problems — not his extremely dangerous economic and social policies.

No reason to complain, OWS

Instead of standing around complaining, Occupy Wall Streeters should ditch their tents and pick up a briefcase. # JOE MUST GO: PATERNO'S FUTURE IN JEOPARDY

Penn State coach feeling heat as Sandusky scandal rages ◗ University cancels scheduled news conference ◗ Report claims Paterno will be fired ◗ Students rally

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Joe Paterno weaves his way through a crowd of Penn State students yesterday at his State College home.

Penn State students stood outside Joe Paterno's home and shouted, "We love JoePa."

But will the support of a few diehards be enough to save the coach's job?

It's looking more and more like it won't.

Pressure continued to mount yesterday for Paterno to retire as head football coach amid a sex scandal involving former top assistant Jerry Sandusky. The 84-year-old Paterno — an icon in central Pennsylvania — missed his first chance to publicly address questions regarding the scandal when a scheduled news conference was abruptly canceled by university officials.

But that didn't stop a media horde from swarming Paterno on his way to practice.

"I know you guys have a lot of questions. We'll try to do it as soon as we can," Paterno said.

The New York Times reported that Paterno's 45-year tenure as Penn State coach could end in days or weeks, citing people briefed on conversations among top officials.

Some members of the board of trustees are pushing for an independent investigation before making any decisions, a source told Reuters.

His son, Scott, said that his father hasn't been asked to step down at this time. In fact, he expects to see him on the sideline this Saturday, when Penn State hosts Nebraska.

Under pressure

The Patriot-News, in Harrisburg, published a full, front-page editorial in Tuesday's edition:

- In it, the editorial board stated, "There are the obligations we all have to uphold the law. There are then the obligations we all have to do what is right."
- "As for Joe Paterno, the face of Penn State and the man who has pushed for excellence on the football field and for the entire university, this must be his last season. His contract should not be extended."

Opinion

ANGELO CATALDI
THE VOICE OF THE PHILLY SPORTS FAN

GOODBYE TO THE POPE OF HAPPY VALLEY

The sad part about Joe Paterno's imminent exit after 46 years as coach at Penn State is not just that it happened under such horrific circumstances. It is that so many people worshipped a hero not worthy of adulation.

The rules have always been different for Paterno. He hadn't won a championship for 25 years — a quarter century — and still he was regarded as the greatest of coaches. As the list of criminal charges against his players grew, he somehow remained the ideal for moral behavior. And when he snapped at question after question, it was never seen for what it really was, bullying.

Of course, we know the truth about Joe Paterno. He protected the reputation of a longtime friend and assistant, Jerry Sandusky — and of his own program — while risking the well-being of innocent, defenseless children. Paterno will face no criminal charges because he reported the one incident of sex abuse he was aware of directly, but he is already guilty in the court of public opinion.

Paterno, the moral conscience of college sports, the Pope of Happy Valley, did the unthinkable. He looked the other way. When extraordinary action was required, Paterno did nothing. How could he? How could a man who had made such a commitment to young people for so long fail them when they needed him most?

No one will ever really know the answer because the case will be tied up in court for many years — first, the criminal charges against Sandusky and his enablers at Penn State, and then the civil cases against everyone close to the case, including Paterno. It's hard to imagine that Paterno will ever tell his side of the story, if there is one to tell.

Quoted

"The record will show that Joe Paterno was a flawed man, who was just more talented at convincing us he was better than everybody else."

All we can say for sure is that he fought to the end, either because he's still in denial that he did anything wrong or because his survival instinct is that powerful. His last public comment was a statement claiming shock at Sandusky's indictment — shock despite a nine-year investigation and Grand Jury probe that included Paterno's testimony.

To the public, there was no real shock over an assistant we hardly even knew, nor over the Penn State bureaucrats who allegedly perjured themselves to protect Sandusky, themselves or their university. Those people are all mortals. None of them are named Joe Paterno.

In the end, the record will show that Joe Paterno was really not much different than all the others stomping the sidelines over the past 46 years, a flawed man who was just more talented at convincing us he was better than everybody else.

Paterno will leave coaching with an indelible stain on his record and in our memories.

Castillo killing the 'Dream'

Andy Reid's winter brainstorm has become a tsunami. The idea of turning a 16-year NFL offensive assistant into the defensive coordinator, absurd at the time, is a full-blown disaster now. Juan Castillo is ruining this football season.

The latest indignity unfolded on Monday, when the Eagles' defense turned a 24-17 lead into a 30-24 defeat. Castillo's underachievers have blown four, fourth-quarter leads, more than any other NFL team. The playoffs are nothing more than a pipe dream now.

Great coaches are supposed to make their players better. Castillo has done the opposite. Nnamdi Asomugha was the biggest free-agent signing of the offseason, an elite, shutdown corner — until Castillo got his hands on him.

Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie has become the saddest case of all. An elite cornerback last season, DRC appears dazed and confused on almost every play. He's one step behind most of the time and he's clearly playing out of position.

Castillo spouts a mantra of hard work, but nothing is working. And nothing will work until Reid ends this ridiculous experiment.

Thome, back to the future

An old friend came back to town. You may remember him. Jim Thome, the man who lifted the Phillies into the stratosphere eight years ago, is back.

Of course, he isn't the same player he was when the Phils wrote him a huge check to commemorate the opening of Citizens Bank Park. A new era of big spending and even bigger winning was upon us, and the poster boy for those first few years was the affable country boy with the majestic home-run swing.

Thome's price tag was just $1.25 million this time, not $85 million. And he's 41, not 33. But one thing hasn't changed. Charlie Manuel was still thrilled to have a player who is more like a son to him than merely a bat off the bench.

Manuel is one of the worst strategists in the game. He appears befuddled every time he steps in front of a microphone. But this is the kind of story that has won him a legion of fans, and a World Series. No one is better at building a relationship with his players.

When Thome was here the first time, he won a lot of games, but no title. This time, he has some unfinished business. He needs to win it — for a city that still admires him.

▶ Jim Thome is back with the manager that loves him.

1 Where is the statue for Philly's real hero? Joe Frazier passed away Monday night, the victim of liver cancer. He embodied the spirit of Philadelphia as much as any athlete, with his toughness, his quirkiness and his smile. If we've got a statue for a fictional hero like Rocky, don't we need one for a real hero like Joe Frazier?

RICARD LARMA/METRO

2 No championships, but plenty of love. The Eagles did something special during Monday night's game. They honored Buddy Ryan and his teams of the late 1980s. Seth Joyner, Keith Byars, Keith Jackson and lots of the other beloved players from those teams were back. The only thing those Eagles won was the love of the fans. Sometimes, that's enough.

3 For Pete's sake. For a guy who went totally unnoticed for three seasons as the Phillies' bench coach, Pete Mackanin has suddenly become a hot commodity on the managing market. His predecessor, Jimy Williams, hasn't worked since the 2008 parade — and the 60-year-old Mackanin is a top managing prospect. Go figure.

Reid, Eagles trying to solve late collapses

Birds outscored by 36 points in fourth quarters Coach won't call his struggling team soft Players believe they still have shot at postseason

If only the Eagles could play three quarters. There's a good chance Andy Reid's squad would be 7-1, instead of 3-5.

Following Monday night's 30-24 loss to Chicago, where they blew another fourth-quarter lead, the Eagles have now been outscored 24-60 in the game's most critical quarter. That is a 36-point differential, which is the worst in the entire NFL.

"We've got to do a better job in the fourth quarter," Reid said. "Some of it's penalties, putting ourselves in a bad situation, and other parts are making sure that we get the right plays in to allow the players to execute."

When asked if his team was soft, the coach simply replied, "No."

Whatever the Eagles want to pin these losses on, time is running out on their fading playoff chances. They get Arizona (2-6) on a short week, this Sunday at the Linc, before traveling to the NFC East-leading Giants (6-2).

Translation: It isn't getting an easier.

"The only thing we can do is take it one game at a time and try to learn from our mistakes," quarterback Mike Vick said. "I know with myself, take a more aggressive approach and maybe study a bit more, do some things differently, try to find a way to go out and be the football player I know I can be."

While many continue to write them off, the Eagles remain confident and insist that doubt hasn't crept into their locker room.

"Yeah, there's still an opportunity, man. There definitely is," wide receiver Jeremy Maclin said. "We have a small room for error now, so we have to go out there and take care of business."

Injury report

Reid updated the health of his struggling team as they prepare for Arizona:

- Starting safety Nate Allen has a concussion and has to go through the proper protocol, per NFL rules.
- Starting guard Evan Mathis has turf toe and underwent an MRI. His status will be updated later this week.
- Defensive end Juqua Parker was out this past week with a high ankle sprain. Reid said he is "getting better."

Saint Joe's ready to bring thrill back to Hawk Hill

Hawks look to build off some late-season momentum ◗ Martelli needs 10 wins to become school's all-time leader ◗ Season begins this weekend

Don't pay attention to the overall record.

Just look at the final 11 games. That's when everyone witnessed the maturity and growth of a young Saint Joseph's team.

The Hawks finished 11-22 last year with the youngest team in coach Phil Martelli's 16 seasons. But they won six of their last 11 and came within three points of a spot in the Atlantic 10 title game.

Those freshmen who went through the growing pains — guard Langston Galloway, and forwards Ronald Roberts, C.J. Aiken and Daryus Quarles — came back to Hawk Hill much more experienced as sophomores.

They'll be joined by highly touted freshman guard Chris Wilson, who averaged 18.4 points and 5.7 assists per game as a high school senior.

Combine everything and the Hawks feel really good about the 2011-12 season, which begins Friday at Western Kentucky.

Friday

Saint Joseph's at Western Kentucky, 8 p.m.

"There's definitely been a carryover effect," said Martelli, who needs 10 victories to surpass Bill Ferguson as the school's career leader with 310 wins. "I don't think enough can be said about the progress at the end of last year."

Junior guard Carl Jones, who led the team in scoring last season at 17 points per game, has already scored 842 career points. He's on pace to become the 48th Saint Joseph's player to reach the 1,000-point mark.

But Jones is sick of losing games, and he's anxious to alter that trend.

"Definitely," Jones said. "There's more fire in our belly. I feel like we've worked harder this year than we did last year."

Reflecting on the legendary Frazier

Boxing fans, legends recall 'Smokin' Joe' after his death ◗ Mayweather offers to fund funeral ◗ Tributes adorn former gym on North Broad Street

How much was Joe Frazier respected in the boxing world?

So much that one current fighter has offered to pay for his funeral.

Unbeaten world welterweight champion Floyd Mayweather Jr. tweeted the following message, "My condolences go out to the family of the late great Joe Frazier. #TheMoneyTeam will pay for his Funeral services."

Frazier, a Philly resident who died Monday night of liver cancer, had struggled financially after his boxing career ended. In later years, he lived alone in an apartment above the gym he ran on North Broad Street. That gym, now a furniture store, was adorned yesterday with fan tributes.

Another legendary area boxer, Bernard Hopkins, was one of the first to pay his respects.

"Joe is a person who will never be imitated or emulated," Hopkins said. "His legacy in boxing will never be duplicated, especially during his era. There will be only one Smokin' Joe Frazier."

Frazier was born to a sharecropper in South Carolina, but moved to Philadelphia to change his luck. He is credited with giving Sylvester Stallone's "Rocky" the inspiration for jabbing slabs of beef, since Frazier reportedly did the same while working at a slaughterhouse here.

@MIKE_GREGER
FOR AN UP-TO-DATE PHILLY SPORTS FEED

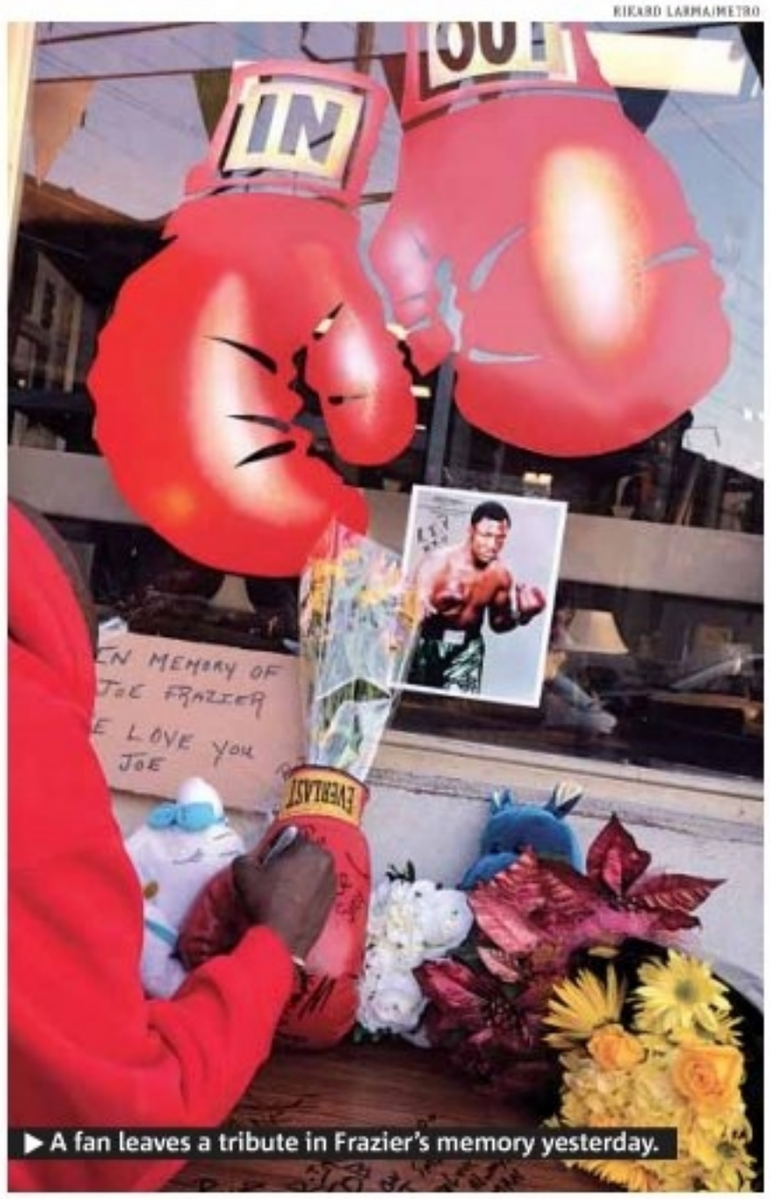
(Ironically, it is the fictitious "Rocky" who has a statue in the city and not the legendary Frazier).

Of course, Frazier will be eternally linked with Muhammad Ali, thanks to their trilogy of fights in the 1970s. Frazier won the first bout in 1971— called the "Fight of the Century" — and Ali took the next two.

"The world has lost a great champion," Ali said in a statement. "I will always remember Joe with respect and admiration. My sympathy goes out to his family and loved ones."

METRO

RICARD LARMA/METRO



▶ A fan leaves a tribute in Frazier's memory yesterday.

Respect

Joe Frazier was an inspiration to boxers, like Bernard Hopkins (above). Here are some memorable fights in Frazier's career.

- March 8, 1971 Frazier becomes first boxer to beat Muhammad Ali in "Fight of the Century."
- Oct. 1, 1975 Frazier falls to Ali in 15 rounds in legendary "Thrilla in Manilla."
- Jan. 22, 1973 One of only four losses for Frazier, who was knocked down six times by George Foreman and led to the call, "Down goes Frazier."
- Foreman said, "Joe Frazier would come out smoking. If you hit him, he liked it. If you knocked him down, you only made him mad."

The table is set

- Floral design star Michael Gaffney shows us how to turn corner store stems into a fancy centerpiece
- Don't be mad when your Thanksgiving guests rave about it more than the bird

Sure, you've cooked for three days straight, but no self-respecting holiday table is complete without a centerpiece. "I've seen rooms with the best linens and crystals, but they're not alive until you drop the flowers on the table," says Michael Gaffney, founder of the New York School of Flower Design. (He's responsible for the gorgeous arrangements in movies such as "Black Swan.") "I often wonder why, and I think it's because it adds another element to the room. Instead of metals and linens and materials, it adds life."

And let's face it — your guests are going to need some resuscitation from the food coma that's about to go down. So to give our dinner tables a little more pep, Gaffney shows us how to craft a chic yet inexpensive arrangement (you can do this for less than $30).

TINA CHADHA
tina.chadha@metro.us

How-to guide

What you need:
- 2 dozen bi-colored roses
- 1 urn
- Foam

Instructions:

1 Place soaked foam block into the urn. Cut the foam so it's just above the rim. With the extra foam, fill the sides of the urn.

2 Cut the stems of eight roses down so they are about an inch and a half long.

3 Starting at the rim of the urn — what Gaffney refers to as the lower deck — place each of the eight roses into the foam at a 45-degree angle. "It's like setting eight chairs around a table," he says.

4 Cut the stems of three flowers down so they are about eight inches long.

5 Place the three flowers straight down in the center of the foam forming — what Gaffney calls the penthouse.

6 Cut the stems of eight to 10 roses down so they are about five inches long. Place these in between the lower deck and penthouse at a 45-degree angle.

7 Fill in any holes with extra roses.

8 Adjust each layer so you end up with a dome shape.

9 Add pieces of pittosporum or another green flower in any open spaces for the finishing touch.

10 Place on table and wait for compliments.

Helpful hints

3 TIPS FROM GAFFNEY:

1 Avoid closed buds. Instead, buy roses that look like they're opening.

2 Make this arrangement two to three days before your party.

3 Spray flowers with Floralife Clear Crowning Glory Solution and they'll last up to two weeks.

Their spooky landmark

Always wanted to combine your love of reading and graves? Of course you have. Check out Boneyard Bookworms (www.boneyardbookworms.com), a book club that gets together once a month in the historic West Laurel Hill Cemetery in Bala Cynwyd. The next meeting is Nov. 17.

West Laurel Hill Cemetery, which dates back to 1869, is a popular neighborhood spot for strolling, jogging and dog-walking. It's also an arboretum and sculpture garden.

Neighborhood Guide: Bala Cynwyd

The area has a suburban vibe, but easy access to Philly and the conveniences of city living Why families choose to make it home

Bala Cynwyd is a little bit city, a little bit suburbs.

"You have City Line Ave. right there, which is literally the line dividing Bala Cynwyd from the city, and along it you have the shopping centers and Saks and Target," explains Tina Elmer, a Prudential Fox and Roach realtor who lives in the Montgomery County neighborhood just west of Philadelphia. "Bala Cynwyd definitely has a suburban vibe, but you have the commercial conveniences, too. Deeper into the 'burbs, I don't know if you'd get that."

John Grugan, a lawyer who lives in Bala Cynwyd and works in Center City, calls the neighborhood "a gateway into the Main Line suburbs."

"For people like me, who want a suburban experience but also want to be close to the city to take advantage of it, or who work in town and want to minimize their commute, it's perfect," Grugan says. He also heads the Neighborhood Club of Bala Cynwyd, a 105-year-old civic association focused on preserving the residential character of the area.

Homebuyers will find plenty of housing options, including apartments, condos, twins and single-family homes that range from small starter houses to stately old stone mansions priced in the millions.

"The nice thing is there's such a mix," Elmer says. "Whether your budget is $250,000 or $2 million

Access to the coveted Lower Merion School District is another draw, and the area is extremely family-oriented, says Lisa Mitchell, a resident and owner of Dana Hot Yoga on Bala Ave., a commercial strip off City Line.
